

Surprising Skyfall in Scotland

Bond inspired by Scottish locations

Try some of these Bond-inspired activities to pursue on your visit to Scotland:

- Spy some wildlife

- Highland Safaris, Aberfeldy, Perthshire

- Visit Highland Safaris for a unique experience combining breathtaking Highland scenery, award winning and exhilarating Land Rover Safaris with Scottish heritage, inspiring walking and biking activities, and an exclusive Red Deer Park and Gold Panning Centre. Visitors may be lucky enough to see the majestic red deer, the famous grouse, the elusive mountain hare or the soaring golden eagle as they travel through forests, mountains and moors on private hill tracks.

- Sail on Scotland's West Coast

- 30 miles off the North West coast of Scotland lie the Outer Hebrides, an idyllic island chain that sits on the edge of Europe. Picture a paradise of powder white beaches and Atlantic waves, dark moorland and epic mountains, amazing wildlife and a rich and vibrant culture.

- Each island holds its individual charm and rich history. Arriving by sea is the ultimate way to take in your surroundings, not only heightening your sense of each island's geography, but also to experience that sense of getting away from it all. Routes around the islands pass puffins, porpoises, deer and dolphins, and offers stunning island scenes.

- Experience the downhill thrill at one of Scotland's five ski resorts

- The Spy who Loved Me, The World is Not Enough and On Her Majesty's Secret Service are just three of the many Bond films to include skiing scenes. Scotland has five ski resorts, so why not head to the slopes this winter for skiing, snowboarding or some expert snowsports tuition.

- Be shaken, not stirred at a cocktail bar

- Bramble Bar, Edinburgh

- This Queen Street cocktail bar has quickly established itself as an Edinburgh favourite. The décor is elegant with flatteringly low-lighting, high-backed leather armchairs and lots of intimate corners.

- Get an adrenaline high

- Highland Fling Bungee, Perthshire

Highland Fling Bungee is the UK's first static bungee jump, and is situated near to famous site of the Battle of Killiecrankie. A specially constructed bungee jump platform is suspended below the Garry Bridge over the beautiful River Garry near Pitlochry in Highland Perthshire, Scotland and is perched above a dramatic gorge surrounded by ancient trees.

- Whisk your leading lady away on a romantic getaway
